

Question Completion Status:

QUESTION 1

Western biomedicine was spread through the world in the wake of European colonization.

- ☐ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 2

The chapter argues that "nervos", a disease of the cane-cutters of Alto do Cruzeiro, Brazil, has as much of a social component as a biological one.

- ☐ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 3

The use of azarcón (or greta) to treat constipation can be considered an example of "maladaptation".

- ☐ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 4

Paul Farmer considers AIDS In Haiti to be simply a reflection of social problems and not a medical issue at all.

- ☒ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 5

The Mexican government is seriously trying to make natural childbirth available to all Mexicans

- ☒ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 6

Anthropologists agree that people who hear God speak to them have mental problems.

- ☐ True
- ☒ False

QUESTION 7

One message of the sapiens article is that government health policies can have unexpected consequences.

- ☒ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 8

A "syndemic" is a situation where multiple diseases as well as negative social conditions affect a population at the same time.

- ☐ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 9

When midwives in Mexico are not able to participate in births, it is generally for purely medical reasons.

- ☐ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 10

The Korwa people believe that all deaths are caused by witchcraft

- ☒ True
- ☐ False

QUESTION 11

Medical anthropologists assume that even though cultures are different from one another, disease is exactly the same in all societies.

- ☐ True
- ☒ False

QUESTION 12

Because our bodies are part of our selves, a culture's sense of what makes you a person is important in understanding that culture's medical ideas.

- ☐ True
- ☒ False

QUESTION 13

"SAVA" is a kind of syndemic.

- ☐ True
 - ☐ False
-

QUESTION 14

Paul Farmer regards the plight of Acéphie Joseph as an example of "structural violence".

- ☐ True
 - ☐ False
-

QUESTION 15

The term "biocultural" refers to the idea that medical/biological phenomena can all be entirely explained as the products of culture.

- ☐ True
 - ☐ False
-