

Warren Buffet is the CEO of Berkshire Hathaway. He started investing in his teenage, live in a small town in Omaha/NE, Drives an old Honda, I saw him on Southwest airlines one time traveling(He can travel in a private jet), a Pretty simple guy with a bigger goal he achieved in his life. He was the world's second-richest guy and that was constant for a while(I think he was the sixth richest guy last year). He donates half of his profits every year. If I list the companies he owns and partnered with the list it takes up the entire page. He is an investor, he invests in all the sectors.

I am a big fan of his 10 rules for success.

His strategy in investing, in the Value strategy investment. Value investing is an investment strategy that involves picking stocks that appear to be trading for less than their book value. When you see his website you will find his Geico commercial.

Hello Class and professor,

A business figure whom you would identify as a successful leader is Marcus Lemonis. He is also known as the profit like his TV show.

Marcus Lemonis possess many leadership traits like knowledge of business, Decision Making Skills, and Confidence. I would also add he is empathetic and a teacher. The most important for me is that Marcus is business savvy, and he is willing to share why he is successful.

Marcus was not an overnight success, and he understands the trials and tribulations of creating and running a business. He invests in companies and works with the owners to bring change. He starts with understanding their business and educates them on understanding the cash flow, stopping the losses, and setting up a structure for them to follow. He takes the time to speak with the employees to understand their position and shares their concerns with the owners. He leverages his knowledge and experience from his success to help others become successful as well.
