

An annotated bibliography is a useful intermediate step towards creating any research paper. In an annotated bibliography, you will arrange your sources as a works cited page would be, with a brief summary and response under each entry, and one pertinent quote with appropriate citation from each entry. Part of the goal of such an assignment is to demonstrate that you have read your sources and considered how they will (or will not) be useful to your argument.

For this assignment, create an annotated bibliography of the sources you used for your Preliminary Works Cited assignment in Lesson 3
