

Immigration

The Irish Potato Famine cost over one million lives and as many left for North America. They served as cheap labor and - learn your history - were scapegoated by the politicians and were despised by the Nativists and many citizens of the USA. They were easy targets and depicted as sub humans.

And it goes on today, despite what we have learned and failed to apply.

