

Nine.5

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Declaration of Sentiments (1848)

*Elizabeth Cady Stanton (1815–1902) along with Lucretia Mott, played a major role in drafting the declaration that was presented at the Seneca Falls convention in 1848. The document paralleled the Declaration of Independence and listed the grievances of women, ending with the controversial request for women's rights.

When, in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one portion of the family of man to assume among the people of the earth a position different from that which they have hitherto occupied, but one to which the laws of nature and of nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes that impel them to such a course.

We hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men and women are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are instituted, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. Whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of those who suffer from it to refuse allegiance to it, and to insist upon the institution of a new government, laying its foundation on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience has shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute despotism, it is their duty to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security. Such has been the patient sufferance of the women under this government, and such is now the necessity which constrains them to demand the equal station to which they are entitled.

* From Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony, and Matilda J. Gage, eds., "Declaration of Sentiments," in History of Woman Suffrage (Rochester, N.Y.: Charles Mann, 1881), 1: 67–94.

The history of mankind is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations on the part of man toward woman, having in direct object the establishment of an absolute tyranny over her. To prove this, let facts be submitted to a candid world.

He has never permitted her to exercise her inalienable right to the elective franchise.

He has compelled her to submit to laws, in the formation of which she had no voice.

He has withheld from her rights which are given to the most ignorant and degraded men—both natives and foreigners.

Having deprived her of this first right of a citizen, the elective franchise, thereby leaving her without representation in the halls of legislation, he has oppressed her on all sides.

He has made her, if married, in the eye of the law, civilly dead.

He has taken from her all right in property, even to the wages she earns.

He has made her, morally, an irresponsible being, as she can commit many crimes with impunity, provided they be done in the presence of her husband. In the covenant of marriage, she is compelled to promise obedience to her husband, he becoming, to all intents and purposes, her master, the law giving him power to deprive her of her liberty, and to administer chastisement.

He has so framed the laws of divorce, as to what shall be the proper causes, and in case of separation, to whom the guardianship of the children shall be given, as to be wholly regardless of the happiness of women—the law, in all cases, going upon a false supposition of the supremacy of man, and giving all power into his hands.

After depriving her of all rights as a married woman, if single, and the owner of property, he has taxed her to support a government which recognizes her only when her property can be made profitable to it.

He has monopolized nearly all the profitable employments, and from those she is permitted to follow, she receives but a scanty remuneration. He closes against her all the avenues to wealth and distinction which he considers most honorable to himself. As a teacher of theology, medicine, or law, she is not known.

He has denied her the facilities for obtaining a thorough education, all colleges being closed against her.

He allows her in Church, as well as in State, but a subordinate position, claiming Apostolic authority for her exclusion from the ministry, and, with some exceptions, from any public participation in the affairs of the Church.

He has created a false public sentiment by giving to the world a different code of morals for men and women, by which the moral delinquencies which exclude women from society are not only tolerated, but deemed of little account in man.

He has usurped the prerogative of Jehovah himself, claiming it as his right to assign for her a sphere of action, when that belongs to her conscience and to her God.

He has endeavored, in every way he could, to destroy her confidence in her own powers, to lessen her self-respect, and to make her willing to lead a dependent and abject life.

Now, in the view of this entire disfranchisement of one-half of the people of this country, their social and religious degradation, in view of the unjust laws above mentioned, and because women do feel themselves aggrieved, oppressed, and fraudulently deprived of their most sacred rights, we insist that they have immediate admission to all the rights and privileges which belong to them as citizens of the United States.

In entering upon the great work before us, we anticipate no small amount of misconception, misrepresentation, and ridicule; but we shall use every instrumentality within our power to effect our object. We shall employ agents, circulate tracts, petition the State and National legislatures, and endeavor to enlist the pulpit and the press on our behalf. We hope this Convention will be followed by a series of Conventions embracing every part of the country.

DOCUMENT ANALYSIS

1. In what ways did the Declaration of Sentiments deny or uphold the view of women's moral superiority?
2. Of the injustices listed in this Declaration, how many have been eliminated or significantly reduced in American society today? Do any of the injustices listed persist? Explain.

Chapter Study Questions

1. What similar assumptions about human nature and society do the reformers and revivalists in this chapter share?
2. In what ways is Finney's revivalist strategy—encouraging “excitement”—reflected in the strategies of other reformers like Garrison and Dix?
3. Are there hints of Hawthorne's later criticisms of utopian communitarianism in his letter from Brook Farm? Why might he believe that he had “gained strength wonderfully” from his farming experience?
4. Why do you think this era gave rise to such zealous reformers as Dix, Garrison, and Stanton?

America Through the Eyes of Its People

Third Edition

Volume I

New York Boston San Francisco
London Toronto Sydney Tokyo Singapore Madrid

Executive Editor: Michael Boezi
Supplements Editor: Kristi Olson
Electronic Page Makeup: Lorraine Patsco

America Through the Eyes of Its People, Third Edition, Volume I

Copyright © 2006 Pearson Education, Inc.

All rights reserved. Printed in the United States of America. Instructors may reproduce portions of this book for classroom use only. All other reproductions are strictly prohibited without prior permission of the publisher, except in the case of brief quotations embodied in critical articles and reviews.

Please visit our Web site at: www.ablongman.com

ISBN 0-321-39575-1

3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10—CRS—08 07

Table of Contents

Chapter 1—European Exploration and Colonization

- Christopher Columbus, Letter to Luis de Sant' Angel (1493)
- Alvar Núñez Cabeza de Vaca, "Indians of the Rio Grande" (1528–1536)
- Bartolomé de Las Casas, "Of the Island of Hispaniola" (1542)
- Jacques Marquette, from The Mississippi Voyage of Jolliet and Marquette (1673)
- Thomas Mun, from England's Treasure by Foreign Trade (1664)

Chapter 2—The Early English Colonies

- John Smith, "The Starving Time" (1624)
- The Laws of Virginia (1610–1611)
- Bacon's Rebellion: The Declaration (1676)
- John Winthrop, "A Model of Christian Charity" (1630)
- Excerpt from the Trial of Anne Hutchinson (1637)

Chapter 3—Indentured Servants and Slaves

- William Bull, Report on the Stono Rebellion (1739)
- Gottlieb Mittelberger, The Passage of Indentured Servants (1750)
- Elizabeth Sprigs, Letter to Her Father (1756)
- Olaudah Equiano, The Middle Passage (1788)
- Alexander Falconbridge, The African Slave Trade (1788)

Chapter 4—Uniquely American

- William Byrd II, Diary (1709)
- Michel-Guillaume-Jean de Crèvecoeur, from Letters from an American Farmer (1782)
- Benjamin Franklin, "Upon Hearing George Whitefield Preach" (1771)
- Jonathan Edwards, from "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God" (1741)
- James Oglethorpe, Establishing the Colony of Georgia (1733)

Chapter 5—A Revolutionary Era

- John Dickinson, from Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania (1768)
- Address of the Inhabitants of Assen County to Governor Martin (1774)