

Give an example in the real world where you might do a t-test. Explain what your sample and population averages might be.