

下午 5:49

hii

Did you read the book

Yes!

Did you ready the chapter for this week's module?

Yes I did

How do u feel about this chapter

It has a lot of information that we can learn. My favorite part is probably the bias among all decision bias, which one do you remember the most?

下午 6:00

Yeah I feel pretty related when I read this page

Which one do you remember the most?

I think my decision bias is mostly affected by satisfying

下午 6:02

Satisficing

When I first settle the decision, I will stop thinking about the other possible decision

Yea it's a really common bias that we can see in daily life.

I totally agree with you, especially during a test

And usually it consumes me more time to finish something but have little payback

When I take a test, time is limited. So I tend to rush the answers of multiple choice! Then satisficing occurs.

6:29

KK

You mean changing the answer?

Yes

Usually first sense is right though

I usually get the answer wrong if I change the answer

Depends hahaha. Because there is another decision bias we need to care about. Overconfidence

What do u think is the bias you fall into

Mostly in your life

Representativeness

It happens a lot

下午 6:07

There are so many Information can alter my decision making

For example, menu!

Menu?

Yea

Menu

Please explain more

When you trying to order food, sometimes the restaurant has all the information on one page. And some menus are not organized.

Yeah I agree

Makes me really confused about which one I wanna get

End up I order a lot of food and I can't finish haha

You can ask me to join you lol

Anyway

I think Representativeness mostly likely talking about stereotype

下午 6:12

It's like if we know Sarah likes music major, we will assume she will do music related job when she graduate

下午 6:18

If it's correct, I hope you can point it out so we can discuss

*not correct

I think a great example is losing 10 out of 100 lives vs save 90 out of 100

Representativeness also called framing bias

Yeah and how is that related to ordering food

下午 6:24

This is framing bias I agree

GZX: I think a great example is losing ...

Ok ordering food

Let me explain to u

Some menu gives u an offer like buy one get one free

Another give u buy 2 for the price of 1

It's more like a decision making trick

I get more food anyway, but I can't finish

I get more food anyway, but I can't finish

It's like a promotion to attract consumers to buy. But sometimes restaurants make it a little bit more complicated that I can be confused about which choice I want to make.

Yeah this makes more sense about framing effect

Thank you for explaining

Welcome
