

the profession is clearly visible. The challenge now is to prepare new emergency management professionals for the future suggested by that outline.

References

- Beatley, T. (1995), "Planning and Sustainability: A New (Improved?) Paradigm," Journal of Planning Literature, 9:383-395
- Britton, N.R. (1999), "Wither Emergency Management?" International Journal of Mass Emergencies and Disasters, Vol. 17 No. 2, pp.223-235.
- FEMA, (2000), Planning for Sustainability: The Link Between Hazard Mitigation and Livability. Federal Emergency Management Agency, Washington, D.C.
- Geis, D. and Kutzmark, T. (1995), "Developing Sustainable Communities: The Future is Now," Public Management, August, 1995, pp.4-13.
- Grant, N.K. (1996), "Emergency Management Training and Education for Public Administrators," in Sylves, R.T. and Waugh, W.L. (Eds), Disaster Management in the U.S. and Canada, Charles T. Thomas, Chicago, IL, pp.313-325.
- Kreps, G.A. (1991), "Organizing for Emergency Management," in Drabek, T.E. and Hoetmer, G.J. (Eds), Emergency Management Principles and Practices for Local Governments, International City Managers Association, Washington, D.C.
- Lynn, L.E. (1996), Public Management as Art, Science, and Profession, Chatham House, Chatham, N.J.
- Mileti, D. (1999), Disasters By Design: A Reassessment of Natural Disasters in the United States, Joseph Henry Press, Washington, D.C.
- Moore, M.H. (1995), Creating Public Value: Strategic Management in Government, Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University Press.
- Perry, R.W. and Mushkatel, A.H. (1984), Disaster Management: Warning, Response, and Community Relocation, Quorum, Westport.
- Schneider, R.O. (2002) "Hazard Mitigation and Sustainable Community Development," Disaster Prevention and Management, Vol. 11 No. 2 pp. 141-147.
- Wamsley, G.L. (1990), "The Agency Perspective: Public Administrators as Agential Leaders," in Wamsley, G.L. (Ed), Refounding Public Administration, Newbury Park, Cal., Sage.
- Wolensky, R.P. and Wolensky, K.C. (1990), "Local Government's Problems with Disaster Management: A Literature Review and Structural Analysis," Policy Studies Review, 8: 703-725.