1. A parenthetical citation in the text of a paper must always include a URL if the source is from the web. _____
2. The works cited list is organized alphabetically by authors' last names (or by title for a work with no author). _____
3. When in-text citations are used throughout a paper, there is no need for a works cited list at the end of the paper. _____
4. An in-text citation names the author (if there is an author) either in a signal phrase introducing the cited material or in parentheses after the cited material. _____
5. When a work's author is unknown, the work is listed under "Anonymous" in the list of works cited. _____
6. All authors are listed last name first, followed by first name, in the works cited list. _____
7. When a work has no page number, it is possible that nothing will appear in parentheses to mark the end of a citation. _____
8. In the parentheses marking the end of an in-text citation, the abbreviation "p." or "pp." is used before the page number or numbers. _____
9. When a paper cites two or more works by the same author, the in-text citation includes at least the author's name and the title (or a short version of the title). _____
10. For a works cited entry for a web source, a permalink (static, permanent link) or DOI (digital object identifier) is preferable to a URL. _____
