

Assignments > View Feedback

HIS-20023 Project Rubric

Feedback for Submit Your Project Here

Activity: Submit Your Project Here

Course: HIS-20023-XF102 Historical Inquiry 22DA06

Name: Fernando Merlina

Submission Feedback

Rubric Criteria	Mastered	Not Yet	Criterion Score
Column Proposal: Explains how company's perspective can affect the study of this historical topic	1 point	0 points	/ 1

Criterion Feedback

7/20/22:

To meet this criterion, you need to explain how Quantigration's perspective—the company's point of view—might influence the blogs and how future historians might interpret them. You need to think about and explain how our understanding of historical developments depends on our perspective. We all look at history from our own point of view based on who we are, what we do and believe, etc. If a company consistently posts blogs about workers' rights, labor unions, etc., what does that tell you about the company's perspective?

Employees of the company writing the blogs have a specific perspective based on knowledge and insights, biases and issues of interest that relate to their work, right? That perspective will influence what they focus on, choose to write about and how they understand the information. With this in mind, here are some questions to consider in reconfiguring your response:

Please consider these questions to expand and target your response:

- What makes the company's point of view regarding the historical development of manufacturing valuable?
- Why is Quantigration's perspective a more useful source of information than other sources might be?
- If it were 2051 and you were an historian researching the history of the manufacturing industry, why would you be interested in reading this series of blogs?
- What makes the company's point of view valuable?
- What could the blogs shed light on for historians?

 Print Rubric

Rubric Criteria	Mastered	Not Yet	Criterion Score	Search question
See these project resources for information: • Historiography: An Introductory Guide, Introduction and Chapter 6 • The Weight of Words • Lies and American History 7/16/22 You have a good start here, but the answer needs to be more specific about why historians would be interested in the company's perspective. Why would historians care about Quantigraton's perspective on manufacturing? How would historians use the blogs in their own research? What concerns might they have about bias or accuracy of the information? Some helpful resources: Video: The Weight of Words (17:21) Reading: Lies and American History				le authoritative sources, both primary and secondary, to fc narrative that is supported by evidence from research ence structure, and spelling; and show an understanding o s with no major errors

Done

historical methods for future bloggers to follow	✓
--	---	--	--

Assignment

Submit Your Project Here

Submission ID	Submission(s)	Turnitin® Similarity	Date Submitted ▼
26961538	 FordAssemblyLine Revision.docx (20.7 KB)	4 %	Jul 19, 2022 8:36 AM

Rubric Criteria		 Email.rev.docx (64.66 KB)	58 %
Criterion Feedback	26832686	 Gregory.Email.docx (63.21 KB)	69 %	Jul 15, 2022 1:53 PM
7/20/22: Master		 FordAssemblyLine.docx (19.81 KB)	4 %
7/16/22

For this section of the email, you need to outline a step-by-step process for the bloggers to follow. Remember to explain how to gather their resources and how to develop a good research question.

Helpful resources:

Website: The Research Process

Reading: The SAGE Encyclopedia of Qualitative Research Methods, Selected Section

Video: Developing a Research Question (4:33)

Reading: Reading, Writing and Researching for History

Sample Article: Develops an appropriately sized research question	1 point 	0 points	/ 1
Sample Article: Synthesizes perspectives from multiple authoritative sources, both primary and secondary, to form a cohesive historical narrative	1 point 	0 points	/ 1
Sample Article: Effectively communicates historical narrative that is supported by evidence from research	1 point 	0 points	/ 1

Rubric Criteria	Mastered	Not Yet	Criterion Score
Written answers are clear; use correct grammar, sentence structure, and spelling; and show an understanding of audience and purpose	1 point 	0 points	/ 1
Criterion Feedback 7/20/22: Mastered 7/16/22 The writing looks good so far, but I have left this as "not yet" while you make your revisions.
Lists sources where applicable using citation methods with no major errors	1 point 	0 points	/ 1
Criterion Feedback 7/20/22: Mastered 7/16/22 The citations look good so far, but I have left this as "not yet" while you make your revisions. Remember to cite any new sources you use in the next draft.
Total			/ 7

Overall Score

Mastered

Student has achieved Mastered on all rubric criteria.

Not Yet

Student has not achieved Mastered on all rubric criteria.

