

10/10

Don't summarize - show us this in the play

PLAY SCRIPT: LOVE

[A five minute romantic and humorous script in which Sally, a young girl in the University suffers the desperation of a broken friendship and one evening in a tavern meets Johnson, also a young lad doing his final year of Engineering in the same University. He seems also to suffer a broken relationship which left him with a kid who is with his mother at home. Johnson and Sally seem to get on quite well, and he reveals to Sally of his house down the valley where they could go. Nevertheless, they resolve to keep the bond of friendship and vows to marry after successful completion of university studies. They also resolve to blend their careers of Civil Engineering and Real Estate as well. The date ends well, and they part planning to catch up for more].

Setting: At school, university club inside a restaurant like premises - after char. list

Three Characters:

Johnson: An attractive Engineering student who is ailing from broken relationship in final year of study

Sally: A beautiful attractive young lady in her third year doing real estate and suffering desperation broken relationship after you don't need university for real estate, do you? Find out, but I don't think so.