

Barrender: A part time student in college

leave an extra blank line

Johnson (comes sluggishly over to where Sally is sitting): Mind if I join you? I'm Johnson.

Sally (sipping): Hi Johnson. Free country, my friend. Thank you. I'm Sally.

Johnson (smiles and sits slowly on the stool): Well... the country part I'm sure about. Free-less sure I guess. (Pauses) So, how's the world?

Sally (taking in his face): Depends on whose world you're talking about. How's yours?

Johnson: Quite simple as at now I would say.

Sally: (lifts her brows but makes no sound)

Johnson: Just trying to be funny. It could be better. Or even worse

Sally (nods): Alright Look, I do not mean to be rude but if you're married, I'm not concerned.

Johnson: Mmmh! I was dating, not married...

Sally: Let me guess. You are a divorced with a child? And you seem to be in need of a mom for these are university students? why would she assume he's already married + divorced?

the kid.

Johnson: Yes one kid ^{at the custody of my mother at home}

Sally (looking impressively at Johnson): Why did you leave her?

Johnson: No, she lost interest

Sally (raises her brows): You gamble too much? Drink?

Johnson: Guess I could if I wanted to... but ...

Sally: Oh my. You're helpless then!

Johnson (laughing): not really, but it's a subject to discovery

Sally (sipping again and smiling): I'm a natural at exploring.

Johnson (Puts on a confident Smile): It's becoming more flawless. Let's share your welfare now Where is he?

clear names in the

Why?

Why?

Why?

What is?

Why?

awk