

share even the most sacred secrets, and develop a world of their own that only the two understand. This is the overall thing that makes marriage couples special and unique from all other people surrounding the couple. Avoiding intimacy pushes one of the partners to extra marital affairs and this marks the beginning of marriage breakage. All the above factors and efforts should be applied at the same time on a daily basis if a successful marriage is anything to go by. It is a combined effort and this means that no single marriage partner would assume that the other party should take charge.
