

Conclusion

The world is changing, and so are the systems that define and control people's day to day operations and interactions. While education can be used as a tool preparing people to practice a profession, the current technological and other changes demand a new approach where people get educated to promote their thinking and create employment opportunities both within and outside their profession.

Works Cited

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/>

