At various stages, Christon Archer, Paul Vanderwood, Linda Arnold, Guy Thomson, Jan Bazant and John Lynch gave me their time and advice, and were prepared to discuss or read what I was trying to convey. In Guadalajara, I was particularly grateful to Carmen Castañeda for guiding me towards the appropriate archives of that city. D. Salvador Gómez kindly enabled me to work in the Guadalajara municipal archive, of which he is the director. Representatives of the Executive Power in the States of Jalisco and Puebla facilitated access to their respective notarial archives, and in the latter case also to the Registro Público de la Propiedad y Comercio. I received ready assistance from the directors and staff of the Archivo de la Casa de Morelos and the Archivo del Ayuntamiento in Morelia, Michoacán. The municipal president, Ing. Ruiz Béjar, enabled me to work in this latter archive, of which the encargado, D. Antonio Chávez, helped to orientate me. In Puebla, I was fortunate enough to gain admittance to the archive of the Cathedral, through the kindness of its encargado, Padre J. Manuel Martínez.

The Social Science Research Council in London generously funded my research in Mexico during the summer months of 1977, 1978 and 1979. The British Academy financed research in Guadalajara, Morelia, Puebla and Mexico City for the period July to December 1982. The Carnegie Trust for the Universities of Scotland enabled further secondary and bibliographical research to be undertaken at the Bancroft Library, Berkeley, California, in January 1981. Initial research findings were presented and discussed at the University of Edinburgh Economic History Seminar (1977), at the University of Bielefeld (West Germany, 1978), at the University of Calgary (Canada, 1981), and at the Conferences of the Society of Latin American Studies held in Manchester (1978) and Bristol (1980). The ensuing discussions contributed in no small way to the clarification of themes presented in this book. My colleagues at the University of Strathclyde listened patiently through two delivered papers at the Department of History Senior Seminar in 1979 and 1983, and offered their helpful criticisms. Dr Madeleine Tearse and Dr Anita Prazmowska read sections of the manuscript of this book and made several valuable suggestions for improvement. Mrs Jean Fraser kindly typed drafts of the manuscript and Mrs Irene Scouller expertly completed the final version on the word processor. I am grateful to Dr Miles Oglethorpe for assistance in producing the maps.

I doubt anything could have been written at all, without the company of my Mexican friends in those crucial hours after the archives had closed their doors.
