Good morning, Jeannetta

I approve your topic as a place to start, however you'll need to narrow it down to a particular aspect of life or social context in which these differences are meaningful in some way. Otherwise, you'll be overwhelmed by the amount of research you'd need to cover in your paper.

The possibilities are wide ranging. Here are a few examples: introversion vs extraversion as related to one's choice of occupation, success in leadership roles, in marriage, religious practice, recreational preferences, study habits, problem solving, creativity, etc. etc. There are many other possibilities, so narrow down according to what interests you most.

Best regards

Good afternoon Dr. Snodgrass,

My proposed topic is:

Introverts versus extraverts: How do they differ?
