

FIGURE 4.4 A Cognitive Structure about Democracy Learned through Subsumption

been replaced by A, reinforcement principle. Examples of content being taught to learn about different characteristics under the label, government, for example, the founding of America under the and

Superordinate and explained through the because not all learning, for instance, superordinate, rather in which students learn hierarchy as the anchor, not superordinate that is not subordinate cases of superordinate

Superordinate ideas. That is, a new ready established idea, then new idea A is summed, as shown in

New idea A-----

FIGURE 4.5 An Exam