What is education? According to the Merriam Webster ^{ITALICS} dictionary, education is the process of teaching a person in an institution of learning. It is also the knowledge and skills obtained from an institution of learning. Education can also be defined as "the field of study where the instructors are trained on the teaching methods." The word education originates from the Latin word educatum meaning "teaching or training." It is also related with the word educare which means "to raise or care for." The process of education informs a child or a person to help them realize their capabilities. Utilizing such abilities helps the person to improve the world around them.
