

Also, it does not mean, if you are doing your master abroad, you will not have any problem, but you will focusing on your degree rather than partying or skipping the school. After our discussion about studying in another country, I asked him to describe his experience of living in another part of the world, which is completely different from his home country and Hassan told me, "I have become opened minded and I respect the people for whom there are, before that I didn't know that many people who came from another part of the world or from another culture, and I think I am different from before in a better way." Which is true because I have the same experience because we used to live in a small place and the people around us are same, so we did not get the chance to see the people with different opinion or different religion.

run-on sentence

On the same note, Hassan knows for a fact that one of the keys for success in someone's life depends on the choices of the academic field. He went ahead to select California State University, Fullerton, I asked Hassan why did you choose this particular university over the other's, and he said, "Well, First of all, because I have some friends who used to study with me back home at KAU (King Abdulaziz University) and they are here. Second, because I got accepted without the ILETS (International English Language Testing System), and I do not have to take the GRE exam. Moreover, the location it is located in Southern California, and it was my dream to live in California." This is good for him, and he is lucky because normally if you are an international student it is hard to get acceptance in the universities, there so many requirements, hard ones. Hassan described the live in California by, "well I could say is my dream came true." I am happy for him because Hassan is doing what he was hoping for. I have so many Saudi friends, they hoped to get accepted at the university, but they did not meet the qualifications of the schools so they have to get back home.