

Hello Students,

In Assignment2 for week 4, the deliverable is the paper prototype of your app. There are links to several videos that show you how this can be done. You can do it with screenshots or create your own video.

The assignment description mentions assembling your design document elements. These are the final project elements you have been working on the last three weeks and this week. It is what you will be sharing next week with a member of your group (see my other post) so that he/she can write a critical review of your project. (Week 5 A2)

Assignment 2: Dropbox Assignment

Course Project—Part 4: The Design Document

Continuing with the detailed project from W3 Assignment 2, where you documented user goals, this week, you will develop a paper prototype for the design of your proposed application, which can be tested. The prototype should demonstrate the following:

- An understanding of user needs
- A data analysis of user needs
- The task analysis and decision tree

The prototype should be on paper or use index cards to represent starts and screens.

Conduct testing on the paper prototype through appropriate task scenarios and storyboards.

Document the results of your testing.

Additionally, begin assembling your professional design document. Create a Microsoft Word document that will include:

- An introduction
- Your target audience
- The storyboard
- The results of your testing the prototype
- Plan for evaluation

Approach the project as a portfolio project suitable for submission for a professional position as a mobile designer. There is no page or word limit, but the assignment will be evaluated based on the quality of work and thought.

Support your responses with examples.
