

Regardless of your identity, age, environment, or even your social status, everyone goes through obstacles in their life, but what makes you different is the way that you look to the obstacles you face. If you look to obstacles negatively, you will remain in the same spot and will never move forward. In the other hand, when you look to your obstacles positively, you will breakthrough them and move on toward your dreams.

Francisco never gave up. Francisco is an immigrant worker who came to the United States with his parents when he was a child. The most challenging obstacles that Francisco faces in Breaking Through are working and studying at the same time, and being a child migrant worker moving from place to place; however, he overcomes these obstacles by hard working and taking responsibilities, and that is what empowers and transforms him to become successful in his life.