Topic Proposal

Being a soccer player have changed my lifestyle to more of a social and outdoor guy. I was obsessed into video games and not sort of a social person. But the idea of being in sport community especially soccer have effected obviously. I remember I was a kid and see all those official high school matches and how much I was insisting to be part of it. I was trying to prove my skills in the regular "sport classes" so that hopefully I will be noticed by the high school coach or something. There was a soccer contest at my school, and I have played with my classmates and we won the contest that semester and I got an award, which was one of the best assistant players.

The same thing in this community is that there is no way to win without teamwork.

great specific community!
Did the award make you feel part of your soccer community? maybe tell the story about the soccer contest in more detail to help us ~~can~~ understand how you felt part of the soccer community. See me if you have any questions!
