Company president Matthew is organizing a series of seminars for clients and would like to include you as a presenter. These seminars are a marketing tool for the company. By providing additional services and information free of charge, Matthew will be building relationships with potential clients and businesses.

Such presentations also help clients to understand Matthew's company, his values, and his objectives. At this time, Matthew is interested in presenting attendees with information regarding the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and the laws it enforces. In addition to providing clients with information, he also wants to demonstrate that Beta Technology is in compliance with the EEOC.
