

PIL

The assignment asks you to develop a template, model or list of components to be used for the analysis and application of a PIL treaty which you might have to deploy in the future. Since we have spent considerable time examining the ICCPR, that treaty is one you might review to develop your template/model/list of components. You are not limited to that treaty however.

By way of analogy, think of the template, model or list of components you would use for the analysis of a judicial opinion. That template, model or list of components for the opinion includes:
